

Carol J. Jacoby

EASTHAM — Carol (Sandblom) Jacoby, a cherished friend, mother and companion, died peacefully in her home on June 9, 2009, with her family and loved ones by her side.

Born in Weymouth, she moved to Eastham in the early 1970s to be with her parents, Marjorie and the late Russell Sandblom, where she settled to raise a family of her own.

Carol had the rare gift of being able to find and share great joy in the simplest of life's pleasures. She had a big heart as well as an active mind with many interests and passions such as bird watching, gardening, kayaking, traveling, and just being outdoors appreciating the beauty of nature. She loved to read, quilt, play scrabble, watch movies and share her favorite new discoveries in music and art.

Carol made many lifelong friends over the years through her work at the Eastham Police Department and at TJ Maxx in Orleans. She was thrilled and considered herself very lucky to have been able to realize her dream of owning a video store, where she met the love of her life, Wayne Davis.

Those who knew and loved Carol will remember her best for her generosity of spirit and laughter. She treasured above all else sharing quiet time at home with her family. She will be greatly missed by her brother, Russ Sandblom; her sisters, Barbara Austin and Ellen Craven; her many in-laws, cousins, nieces and nephews, and most of all by her closest friend, Norma Marcellino; her significant other, Wayne; her mother, Marjorie; and her children, Daniel, Jacoby and Suzanne Dasilva.

Carol, with the wonderful help of Hospice, looked forward to finally being at rest with those who went before her, including her father, Russ, her sister, Nancy Daley, and her infant daughter, Holly, as well as many others.

A memorial service will be held on Thursday, June 18, at 10 a.m., at the Chapel in the Pines in Eastham.
